Bulgaria Expected To Declare War on Serbia; Troops Mobilize

All Europe Excited Because of Balkan Developments--Believe Ferdinand Has Definitely Decided to Cast His Lot With Teutons And Invade Serbia.

London, Sept. 22.—All Europe today was in a state of feverish excitement because of momentous developments in the Balkans. The report that Bulgaria has ordered mobilization has been confirmed from both ally and pro-German sources.

Other dispatches reaching London from all continental capitals made it appear certain that Czar Ferdinand has decided to cast his lot with the kaiser and will declare war on Serbia before many hours.

Mass Along Border.

Bulgarian troops are massing along the Serbian border. All railways have been taken over by the government. General Savoff, commander of the Bulgarian armies in the two Balkan wars, has been summoned to the capital to take command of the Bulgarian troops.

Serbia has demanded an immediate explanation of the massing of Bulgarian troops on her border, according to Rome dispatches.

Roumanians are hurriedly leaving Bulgaria.

The Greek cabinet is reported to have met in special session last night to prepare mobilization orders.

May Send Ultimatum.

An Athens dispatch today predicted a Bulgarian declaration of war against Serbia within 48 hours. Other reports from the Balkans said Bulgaria was preparing to send an ultimatum to Nish, demanding the immediate cession of Serbian Macedonia. Formal notice of the sending of such an ultimatum will be followed by mobilization of the Greek armies in the interest of Serbia.

With reports that Bulgaria is about to strike came rumors from Swiss sources that Austro-German strategy calls for the beginning of the Serbian invasion early next week.

German newspapers, despite dispatches asserted, comment confidently on the Balkan situation and assure their readers that Bulgaria will invade Servia when the first Austro-German troops force their way across the Serbian boundary.

Are Still Hopeful.

Despite these disquieting reports, the belief was still held in some quarters today that Bulgaria may yet be kept out of the war. Several well informed diplomats here took the view that Bulgaria, if the mobilization reports are confirmed at Sofia, is attempting to frighten Serbia into offering further concessions by a show of armed force.

If Serbia refuses, they held Bulgaria will withdraw from her attitude without striking a blow.

Six Killed In Subway Catastrophe

New York, Sept. 22.—Swallowed up in a canyon which suddenly opened in Seventh avenue, six persons were killed and upwards of 200 seriously or slightly injured here early today. The collapse of the street followed a dynamite blast touched off in the new subway under course of construction.

Street Sank Slowly

The street disappeared from sight for a distance of almost two blocks. The collapse extended from Twentythird street almost to Twentyfifth.

The great timbers supporting the street flooring snapped under the force of a dynamite blast and the street carrying its burden of traffic, foot and vehicle, sank slowly from sight.

Former Employes Bring Suits For "Deposit" Money

Six Suits Are Filed Against Ohio Cannel Coal Company by Laborers Brought Here From St. Louis --Had to Deposit $100 With Company to Get Jobs.

Six suits were filed in common pleas court Wednesday against The Ohio Cannel Coal Co. by ex-employes who claim that they were compelled by the company to deposit $100 which was never returned to them.

Martin Hock, Adam Bott, Paul Keron, John Denath, Paul Schwartz and Joseph Stippeldz are plaintiffs in the suits.

The petitions are practically identical as to allegations and judgments asked. It is alleged in the petition of Martin Hock, that the defendant employed him at an agreed wage and that he was to have continuous employment and free house rent as long as he would work.

Gave "Bond."

It is alleged, however, that the company required him to pay to the officials of the company the sum of $100 which was to be held as security that he would work for the defendant. It was agreed, according to the petition, that the money would be returned when the defendant failed to give continuous employment to the plaintiff or failed to pay him his wages as they became due. When he paid the defendant the $100, he was given a certificate of capital stock, issued by the company, for $100. He claims that he did not know that the paper he was receiving was a certificate of capital stock but thought it was a receipt for his money.

Had No Work.

It is alleged that the defendant failed to keep the contract. He was not given continuous employment, he alleges, and he was not paid his wages. He claims that he has tried to go elsewhere to work but alleges that the company has always had a grudge against him.

The plaintiff claims that he asked the company to pay him the $100 which he had deposited and one of the officials promised to do so. However, he claims that he has never received the money and asks for judgment.

Back Wages Also.

The petition filed by Adam Bott contains the same allegations and also an allegation to the effect that there is still due him for wages and car fare from St. Louis to Coshocton, the sum of $23.27. He asks judgment in the amount of $123.27.

Paul Keron's petition is the same as that of Martin Hock.

John Denath claims that in addition to the $100 deposit the company owes him a balance of $28.67 for wages and car fare from St. Louis to Coshocton. He asks judgment in the amount of $128.67.

Paul Schwartz asks for judgment in the amount of $86.67, of that amount $100 being the deposit and the remainder due for wages and railroad fare from St. Louis to Coshocton. Stippeldz makes the same allegations asking for judgment in the amount of $123.62.

Attorney W. S. Morrell is acting for all of the plaintiffs and prepared the petitions.

No School While Girls Ride And Boys Play Ball

Fresno High school pupils enjoyed a half holiday Wednesday afternoon and while the young men of the school played ball the young women—37 of them—went horse back riding. That is 33 of them went horse back riding while the other four rode mules. The mule riders were, Miss Elder, the school marm, Miss Goldie Leavengood, Miss Amy Deeds and Miss Jessie Hamilton. The country was secured for miles around for suitable horse and railing to find more than 33 it almost seemed for a time that four of the young women would have to stay at home until the mule owners generously offered the loan of their animals, if the girls would ride them. Of course the girls would ride them, that would only add zest to the lark. And they didn't even balk when they learned that two of the mules were white.

Another difficulty presented itself when enough saddles could not be located. But nothing daunting, the saddleless ones went bareback.

Fresno residents say that while the girls were getting started the town presented the appearance of a Wild West Movie picture and that some of the feats performed by the riders in attempting to stick on the back of their animal, were equal to any dare devil act of a movie artist.

At last they were off and riding into West Lafayette 37 strong they brought out the entire population to view the unique sight. It is said they returned to Fresno without a single starter missing. The Fresno stores are prepared to take care of a rushing business in alcohol and other soothing liniments today.

The ball game which took a back seat in face of the other event, was between Fresno and Baltic Hi, resulting in a score of 4 to 1 for Fresno.

The state officials, however, have decided to go ahead with the project, bearing the entire expense. The new road is [illegible] 26 to [illegible] in width [illegible] and will be [illegible] feet. There [illegible] [illegible] 1916. It is [illegible] August 1, 1916.

SPEND MONEY FOR THE NECESSITIES

Divert Ohio's Liquor Bill Into Other Channels.

GREAT THINGS COULD BE DONE

What the State's Drink Bill Would Do In the Way of Buying Homes, Automobiles and Bread and In Building Good Roads.

Columbus, Ohio—(Special)—It is quite generally agreed by both wets and drys that Ohio's drink bill reaches the huge sum of $110,000,000 each year. This amount is so large that it is difficult to comprehend it. Some person who likes to figure has prepared some interesting results showing what this money would do if spent in other ways instead of being wasted on drink.

This $110,000,000 would buy 55,000 homes costing $2,000 each, allowing a forty-foot frontage to each home. It would make a line of such homes 416 miles long, or placing them on both sides of a street, it would make a highway lined with homes stretching across the state from Toledo to Cincinnati.

The price of such a street of homes is swallowed up every year by the drinkers of Ohio.

Good roads experts say you can build a mile of brick highway sixteen feet wide for $15,000. Ohio's annual drink bill would construct 7,330 miles of such highway, or thirty-four of these improved thoroughfares from Lake Erie to the Ohio river.

Now you get an idea of what Ohio worse than wastes every year for booze.

Here is another example. The $110,000,000 which Ohio spends for liquor every year would buy 2,200,000,000 5-cent loaves of bread. This would give a loaf to each man, woman and child in the state every day in the year and there would be more than $18,000,000 of a balance.

And yet in Ohio thousands are dependent upon charity for bread, while the money flows out for booze.

One more comparison. A splendid automobile may be purchased for $1,000. If the $110,000,000 which Ohio spends each year for liquor were invested in $1,000 cars, it would buy 110,000 of them, and allowing twenty feet to each car, it would make a line of automobiles 416 miles long.

When such comparisons are made the voter can better realize the tremendous purchasing power of the money now spent for drink each year right here in Ohio. He can also get an idea of how business would be boosted were this big sum to be spent with legitimate tradesmen.

And yet this $110,000,000 which Ohio spends for drink each year is only the first cost of the traffic. Add to the sum the amount it costs the taxpayers each year to take care of the product of the saloon—to provide for the paupers, insane and imbeciles, to protect and care for the criminals, to build and maintain prisons, asylums and almshouses, and pay the costs of courts—when all this cost is added to the booze bill, the voter will realize he is paying dearly for the few dollars which come back from the saloon license in the way of license money.

BIG DECREASE IN LIQUOR REVENUES

Uncle Sam's Figures Give Liquor Men the Shivers.

Cincinnati, O.—(Special)—The various liquor organizations with headquarters in this city are much [illegible] over the preliminary report of the United States Internal Revenue Commissioner Osborne. This report covers the secretary of treasury [illegible] the fiscal year ending June [illegible]

The report shows that collections [illegible] and amounted [illegible] $4,095,[illegible] less in 1915 than in [illegible]

The report shows there were [illegible] liquor dealers doing business in this country in 1915 than in [illegible] that for wholesalers and retailers [illegible] was 1,[illegible]

It was that every 28 minutes [illegible] working day last year a saloon was shut up for good.

The decrease in liquor consumption [illegible] compared with 1914 equals [illegible] each man, woman and child in the country.

The liquor men are at last compelled to admit that prohibition does [illegible]. The report is most encouraging to the drys and they expect to win [illegible] in this year's Ohio campaign.

The voter who actually believes in the initiative and referendum must cast his ballot against its destruction by the amendment initiated by the wets under cover of the Constitutional Stability league.

Kaiser Is Slightly Injured

Amsterdam, Sept. 21.—Kaiser Wilhelm and Prince Joachim were slightly injured in an auto accident, according to Berlin dispatches today. The imperial auto was wrecked, the dispatches said. No further details were given.

Last reports indicated that the kaiser was at the eastern front with his troops, one dispatch reporting that he was with Von Hindenburg and was directing the operations by which the Germans are attempting to entrap 300,000 Russians near Vilna.

The kaiser's trips along the battle front was made in a big gray auto, a familiar sight with the German troops.

Prince Joachim, the kaiser's sixth son, is in his 25th year. At the outbreak of the war Prince Joachim was a lieutenant in the first regiment of the Prussian guards. He was reported to have been slightly wounded by shrapnel on Sept. 10, 1914. He rejoined his command a month later and was promoted to be a captain of cavalry.

OFFICIALS GET COUNTERFEITERS

New York, Sept. 21.—Secret service agents, acting under the direction of Captain Henry, today were with William Flynn, chief of the secret service, says is one of the most important [illegible] that [illegible] made in years. Four men, charged with counterfeiting $2 internal revenue stamps, were arrested just as they were getting them in readiness for delivery to distributors. One of the men was caught with a bundle of the counterfeited stamps just as he was leaving a waiting office to take them to a place where they were to be distributed. All are at police headquarters.

Captain Henry, accompanied by Agents Burke, Kavanagh and McCahill and Detectives Leahy and Meyer, today went to 225 Sullivan street. For months the agents had trailed the men. The officials seized the plates from which the stamps were printed as well as 3625 stamps.

The chief believes this is one of the best catches his department has made for some time, as would have been comparatively easy to have distributed the counterfeit stamps, and it would have been difficult for the average person to have detected the counterfeits.

Report British Transport Sunk

Berlin, Sept. 21.— By Wireless to Sayville.—The Frankfurter Zeitung reports that a large British transport, from Egypt to the Dardanelles, had been sunk by a German submarine.

SPECIAL FAVORS TO TENNESSEE CANNERS

Amendment to Child Labor Law Passed This Year.

NEED FOR A FEDERAL LAW.

An effort made in New York last winter to grant canneries special favors by permitting them to work their operatives longer hours was strongly condemned by the press throughout the country, and the attempt failed. But no attempt was made to do anything when she did the same thing in another the same day. In fact, the Child Labor [illegible] the Tennessee amendment as far more serious than the New York one would have been since the change in the New York law would not have affected any children under sixteen, while the Tennessee amendment permits children under fourteen to work in canneries and for unlimited hours per day.

"It is strange how many states fail to realize that children are more valuable than fruits and vegetables," said Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, in commenting on Tennessee's action. "The idea is so common that canning goods is more important than protecting children that we find not only Tennessee, but Delaware, Maryland, Indiana, Maine and Virginia making special exceptions to their child labor laws for the benefit of canneries, while Mississippi does not exclude them at all. I don't know why the idea should prevail that our interest in canneries should justify us in cruelly exploiting children, when the conditions there are usually worse than in factories.

"We feel that the only successful way to meet the country situation is through the federal law which will be introduced in the next congress and which, if passed, would prohibit the shipment outside the state of canned goods which have been produced by children under fourteen years of age or on which they had worked more than eight hours a day. A letter came to us the other day from a woman who wished to know what variety of canned goods she could buy and feel sure that no children had worked on it. We could not tell her, but we did tell her that if she would help us in passing a federal law she could buy any kind of canned goods with safety."

Valuable Advice.

TAX QUESTION AND OHIO'S DRINK BILL

What the People Get for What They Give.

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES

While the State Spends $22 Per Capita For Liquor Each Year It Receives In Return but $1.20 Per Capita In the Way of License Money.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Last fall when the statewide campaign was on the department of the auditor of state gave out a statement to the effect that if Ohio should vote dry and if the taxpayers would have to make up every dollar now paid to the state in liquor license fees, the man who pays taxes on $1,000 of valuation would pay $2 extra a year more by reason of the loss of liquor revenue.

But the wets argue that the state receives only three-fifths of the license money and therefore the state auditor's claim holds good only so far as state taxes are concerned.

A conservative estimate places the money spent for drink in Ohio each year at $110,000,000. There are 5,000,000 men, women and children living in Ohio. The drink bill of the state therefore amounts to $22 a year for each man, woman and child.

The total amount of money paid in license fees by liquor dealers is $6,000,000 a year in round numbers. This is the sum paid not only to the state, but to the counties and municipalities as well. This is an average of $1.20 a year for each of the 5,000,000 men, women and children.

The liquor traffic receives $22 per capita from the people of Ohio each year and pays back in license money only $1.20 per capita per year.

The $6,000,000 paid by the liquor dealers in license fees comes from the people of the state and for the most part from those least able to pay. The traffic collects each year for license $110,000,000 from the people of Ohio and pays back in license fees only $6,000,000.

This $110,000,000 which Ohio spends for drinks is taken from legitimate business. Nothing of value is given in return. That much wealth is destroyed. The only salvage is the petty $6,000,000 which is returned in license fees.

If that $110,000,000 now wasted were actually added to the wealth of the state and this new wealth would pay its share of the taxes, the state would be far better off than under present conditions.

Not only is there the first cost of $110,000,000 yearly, but also the cost of millions more in caring for drink victims, and for it all only $6,000,000 comes back in the way of license fees.

If saloons are necessary as revenue producers, why are 600 of Ohio's 800 cities and towns dry and why do the voters in these dry towns refuse to permit saloons to return?

If the people must have saloons to help pay taxes, why have eighteen states banished saloons and why do these states refuse to go back into the wet column?

If a state needs liquor revenue to keep her taxes low, why is it that prohibition Kansas, which has not had a dollar in saloon revenue for more than 30 years, has a bonded indebtedness of less than 10 cents per capita, while Cincinnati, which in the past six years has had saloon revenue aggregating many millions, has a bonded indebtedness of more than $165 per capita?

LIQUOR AND EMPLOYMENT

More Men Lose Jobs Because of Saloons Than If Saloons Were Closed.

Ohio liquor papers say that if the state is voted dry, hundreds men will be thrown out of employment. There are not one-third of hidden men employed in the manufacture and sale of liquor in Ohio. Liquor is a poor employer.

MESSENGER SERVICE A "CRIME FACTORY."

So Louis W. Hine Tells Child Labor Conference.

"Time for lunch" is the term which an investigator for the National Child Labor Committee made use of in describing the origin of the free messenger service at the Louisville Annual Conference on Child Labor. This name Lewis W. Hine said, was given to the service because of the number of boys who were sent out to make lunches and other purchases for the employes of the company. The number of boys employed in the service varies from 50 to 1,000 according to the season of the year. Some are employed part of the time, some full time, and some only a few days. Many are orphans and poor, some of them. Indeed, many of the boys are supported by their mothers and have to do work in order to keep their families together. Boys are being employed every second of the country.

[illegible] "THE PRODUCT OF THE [illegible] PROCESS" have failed to [illegible] a single [illegible] in a school [illegible] and [illegible] by it to present conditions with vigor.

The chances of promotion in the messenger service were summed up by one boy as follows: "Nothing to it unless you are the right kind of any-

In our office the manager never cared what became of you as long as you were within calling distance."

The attitude of other employers toward the boy who has worked as a messenger was brought out last night by Miss Anne Davis of Chicago at a hearing on the proposed Illinois child labor law, which is based on a message sent last fall by the National Conference. "Employers tell me," said Miss Davis, "they always say they like a boy who has worked as a messenger because they know he knows how to take orders."

A Stage Name.

There is a story, well known to theatrical folk, of how Ada Rehan, the actress, whose name was Ada Crehan, came to adopt the stage name of Rehan. Mr. Daly, tradition relates, was engaged in middle initials of his actors and actresses being printed in advertisements and programs. Just before Miss Rehan's appearance as a Daly recruit Mr. Daly was looking over some proofs of programs. His eye fell on "Ada C. Rehan," a compositor's error. He struck out the "C," and Rehan [illegible] adopted.

CHAPTER XIX—Wyatt and Noreen [illegible] courthouse and Noreen decides to accompany him in his flight.

"You will be just as welcome; I will write her every detail, and she will be rejoiced to shelter you. The only trouble is the necessary delay involved by the war; the impossibility of your returning to return to Green Briar until the conflict is over."

She was silent a long while, her eyes cast down, her breathing noticeably rapid. I waited, not knowing what else to say, and was about to propose her lying down, when she spoke suddenly:

"You mean our—our separation?"

"Certainly. That can be easily arranged as soon as the courts are again in session. Possibly the ceremony was not even legal without witnesses, but, under these circumstances, it had better be disposed of in court. Such action would remove all doubt from your mind."

"You—I suppose so; you—you make it very clear. And that would have to be done in Green Briar?—the—the action would be there?"

"As a matter of course, not necessarily, of course, but I supposed you would rather have your secrets made known there so that your friends can realize all the circumstances, I mean, the [illegible] cause. I may tell Dick I say you may not [illegible] to do this."

"Not do it? Why?"

"A soldier never knows what another minute means; I am a soldier."

She did not look at me, or move, although I thought the hand resting on the grass trembled.

"I believe I will lie down," she said finally. "Is that the place you have chosen beyond those trees?"

"Yes; let me help you up; the blankets are both yours. I shall not need any."

I stood and watched her move across the rich, the mingled shade and sunlight, until her slender form finally disappeared behind the screen of undergrowth. Once she had glanced about, pausing as though some thought had occurred suddenly, but she did not speak. I was left alone.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Cane Ridge Meeting House.

The spot where Noreen lay was not fifty feet distant, but my position gave me no glimpse of her through the tangled brush. I must have dozed, for the sun was high overhead when I finally aroused myself, and arose to my feet. I watered the animals, and seated myself again, this time on a flat stone beside the stream. Surely I had never been here before, even in the days of my boyhood's vagrant tramping, and yet that terraced crest, with the huge rock chimney rising conspicuous at its center, revived a recollection that would not be entirely denied. I had seen it before, but from another angle—from the south; from that hillside, perhaps, where the creek headed. Why, that was Cane Ridge!

I do not know why I laughed, but I did—perhaps it was from sudden relief at thus discovering exactly where we were, and seeing clearly the easier way out. The sound of a foot stepping on a round stone caused me to face about. Noreen was within a few feet of me, higher up on the bank, one hand holding back the bough of a tree.

"Why were you laughing?" she asked. "I thought you had gone until I heard that sound."

"I had to laugh when the truth finally came to me; that is Cane Ridge."

"Where—where the Baptist church is?"

"Exactly; where Parson Nichols points out to his congregation the straight and narrow way. There is a bridle path yonder leading up from the valley, which will save us a five-mile detour. But it means we are still in Cowan's country, and to climb there with horses will require the use of daylight."

"You think Anse—"

"Is probably back before this, and doing his best to trail us. Even if he does not discover the body of old Ned, he will naturally conclude we will head east. My only hope is that, not having seen us last night he may imagine we chose the southern route, and ride there first. But if he did, doubtless he would send some one of his men scouting this way."

"You have heard—seen nothing?"

"No, we are too far back; the noise of an army passing along the pike would not reach here. If we get to Cane Ridge church before dark, we must trust to luck, and the night for the next thirty miles."

"You fear Cowan's gang more than the troops? Surely they will pursue?"

"No doubt; Pickney will be raving, and Raymond crazy to get hand on me. All there will be some galloping of the troops. I should have liked to see Fox's face when he heard the news. By heavens! they are like Orsich declared him with conspiracy, for he was officer of the day. However, I do not greatly fear them; they will make noise enough to warn us, and couldn't track a bear. It is the mountain men we must guard against; they are wolves. You slept well?"

"After my first half hour. I am rested, and strong. Shall we go now?"

"When we have eaten. There may be no other opportunity, and there is ample time."

We sat over the poor meal a long while, talking like old friends, laughing over revived memories, almost forgetting that we were fugitives, our very lives at stake. Twice we heard guns, but the reports were but distant echoes sounding afar off to the westward. Yet these made me nervous to get away, and when a number sounded together—almost a volley, distinctly audible, I hastened to pack what little remained of food on our horses, and led the way, fording the shallow stream, and guiding my horse up the opposite bank into the deep shadow of the woods beyond. The summit of the hill was open, except for a considerable grove to the rear of the church. That edifice appeared, as I remembered it, unchanged in any respect—a fairly large building, constructed solidly of logs, with square, clapboarded tower in front, four windows on each side, containing small panes of glass, a number of them broken. We were at the rear, which showed a larger window, and a narrow door at one corner, protected by a porch. It appeared desolate and deserted, the loneliness accentuated by the empty hitching racks on either side.

We advanced side by side along what was once a well-trodden path, making no attempt at concealment. Indeed, any such effort would have been useless, as the crest of the ridge lay open, and bare of vegetation, but I was so fully convinced we were unobserved that I took no precaution—my entire thought, indeed, centered upon the girl at my side.

"The not forgetting it," replied the new acquaintance, a perpetual growl, "is one of the reasons why we are always complained to about the noise. Let other people's boys have a good time."—Washington Star.

FOR A BAD COUGH.

Here is a fine old-fashioned recipe for coughs, colds or catarrh trouble that is absolutely unequaled. Get from your druggist 1 oz. of Parmint Double Strength and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and 1 oz. of granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

No more racking your whole body with a cough. Clogged nostrils will open, air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has a stubborn cough, hard cold or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial.

FRESH AT NIGHT.
If One Uses the Right Kind of Food.

If by proper selection of food one can feel strong and fresh at the end of a day's work, it is worth while to know the kind of food that will produce this result.

A school teacher out in Kans. says in this connection.

"At the time I commenced the use of Grape-Nuts my health was so poor that I thought I would have to give up my work altogether. I was rapidly losing in weight, had little appetite, was nervous and sleepless, and experienced, almost constantly, a feeling of exhaustion.

"I tried various remedies without good results then I determined to give particular attention to my food, and have learned something of the properties of Grape-Nuts for rebuilding body, brain, and nerves.

"Since using Grape-Nuts I have made a constant and rapid improvement in health, in spite of the fact that all this time I have been engaged in strenuous and exacting work.

"I have gained twelve pounds in weight and have a good appetite, my nerves are steady and I sleep sound. I have such strength and reserve force that I feel almost as strong and fresh at the close of a day's work as the beginning.

"Before using Grape-Nuts I was troubled much with weak eyes but as my vitality increased the eyes became stronger.

"I never heard of another food as nutritious and economical as Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

ROOTS OUT CORNS BY PENETRATION

Dr. Hunt Finds the Quick, Clean, Painless, Effective Way. ONLY 10c.

Cutting a corn never cured it. Caustic liquids only invite blood poisoning, and stimulate further corn growth. Corn pads are bulky and squeeze the toes. Salves are greasy. But the one way that does cure corns of all kinds and sizes is the penetration way, discovered by Dr. Hunt, of Sidney, Ohio, a medical man who has spent a lifetime in the development of this new principle of curing corns by penetration.

Dr. Hunt's New Corn Cure comes in the form of clean, handy plaster. Six plasters in a box. Trim plaster size of corn and apply. Instantly the pain is eased. All you feel is the soothing effect. The plaster does not bulk up like clumsy pads.

Now see what happens: In two days the corn has become so thoroughly penetrated that it can be easily and quite painlessly lifted out, root, branch and all.

Remember, this principle is new. It is different from anything else offered as a permanent cure for stubborn corns. And a box full costs only ten cents. Money back if not delighted. Sold by druggists and shoe dealers everywhere. Or, send ten cents in stamps to American Chemical Company, Sidney, Ohio.

MISTREATING INVENTORS

A theory set forth a few months ago by C. W. Eliot regarding democracy and efficiency was to the effect that an autocratic government tends to place restrictions on independence of thought so that men of original genius are less likely to come to the front than in countries of greater freedom. He sought to prove this by showing that great fundamental ideas in modern invention originated in the United States, England, France and Italy.

He said, in effect, that it remained to be seen whether the present war would prove this theory by the triumph of inventive genius of the more democratic nations. Whether Dr. Eliot was correct in asserting that Germany has been less productive of fundamentally new ideas than England, France, Italy and the United States is, of course, a matter easily subject to dispute. Certain it is, however, that Germany has been prompt to adopt and develop in a wonderful way new ideas, wherever they may have originated, while the geniuses of England and America have not always received prompt recognition by their own governments.

The movement by Secretary Daniels toward organizing the inventive genius of the United States is almost simultaneous with a similar movement in England. The hot fire of criticism and ridicule directed at Secretary Daniels from a great number of newspapers and periodicals has been almost silenced since his announcement of this plan. Yet so ingrained had become the habit of criticism, that some of the critics qualified their praise of the idea by suggesting that something in the nature of Mr. Daniels' mind would prevent the plan from working, and that maybe the whole thing was a press agent's dodge to put an end to the attacks on him.

The Scientific American, however, which has been a member of the anti-Daniels chorus, expresses itself as pleased to indorse his plan for the creation of a bureau of invention and development. Much had been said by those previously attacking Mr. Daniels of the folly of a nation's not being guided by the trained judgment of technically qualified students of the needs of war. Yet how the purely bureaucratic military mind has worked with regard even to the proper equipment of our army and navy gives rise to some doubts when one reads the following from the Scientific American on "Governmental Indifference to Invention:"

That the press criticism of the Secretary of the navy, looking to a proper recognition and encouragement of the inventors, a movement which already has spread to the sister service, has come none too early is evident if we look back over the past years and note how this indifference—we had almost said opposition—has been responsible for the loss to the United States of some of the most notable naval and military inventions of the age.

At the head of the list in point of time and importance is, of course, the machine gun, the inventor of which, Sir Hiram Maxim, had only to offer it for European inspection to have the enormous value of this invention immediately recognized and find himself hooded with orders for his gun.

The invention of face-hardened, or carbonized armor plate by the American, Harvey, was one of the most notable contributions to the art of warship construction; yet the reception of his great invention by the navy department was almost insultingly indifferent, and Harvey had to go to the courts, even after his armor plate had been adopted, and used extensively in our navy, before he could recover his just award.

The American, Janney, invented and perfected a speed-gear, so powerful and exact, as to make it possible for the gun-pointer to swing his sixty-ton rifle on the target and hold it there with the ease with which a soldier handles his shoulder-piece. Exclusive rights were offered, if we remember rightly, to our navy department, and had they accepted we should have been enormously in advance of other nations in target practice. Janney went to Europe, where, as usual, the American invention was recognized and adopted, and liberally financed.

Colonel L. N. Lewis, one of the most brilliant artillery officers in our army, designed a depression range finder which he offered to the government. It was turned down. Subsequently a private firm took up the matter, and now the government is buying the range finder which Colonel Lewis patriotically offered several years ago to the army gratis.

So also with the twenty-five-pound machine gun of the same inventor, probably the best for its weight in the market. The Lewis machine gun was offered to the government. It was turned down. The colonel went to Europe. The merits of the American invention received their usual recognition in Europe. Today, three of the allied nations are taking all of these machine guns that can be turned out.

The mobilization of the inventive genius of the nation! The history of the past would certainly suggest that this movement has been as badly needed in the army as in the navy. The new bureau movement should be made to include both branches of the service.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Last week, in this column, attention was directed to the annual toll in infant lives due to whooping cough. One of the chief reasons why the disease is hard to control is the fact that an early diagnosis before the whoop is difficult to make.

Certain definite conditions and symptoms are of value in arousing the suspicion that the case may be whooping cough.

The presence of the disease in the community is highly suggestive. The cough is peculiar and different from that due to a simple cold. The acts of coughing succeed one another rapidly with no intake of the breath between them. During the cough the eyes and face become red and congested and vomiting occurs not infrequently.

The child becomes nervous and is apt to brace himself against some nearby object or run to its parents. Attacks come on during the night, and whether occurring night or day may cause nose bleed. This group of symptoms are highly suggestive of whooping cough and frequently occur without the "Whoop."

The laboratory men have placed the question of a diagnosis on a scientific basis by perfecting a blood test which makes a diagnosis easy at a much earlier date than was formerly possible. In fact, in the average case the diagnosis can now be made seven days before the whoop develops. The importance of this test is difficult to over estimate.

It means the proper isolation of the patient at a time when infection is being scattered through the discharges from the mouth, nose, and bronchial tubes. It also means the institution of proper treatment at a period when most can be expected from such treatment.

A serum treatment is on trial as a result of isolating the germ causing whooping cough. The claim is made that the use of this treatment has resulted in shortening the disease, lowering its death rate and partially eliminating the dangerous complications which have been responsible for the many deaths charged to this disease.

FAMOUS WALKERS.

Men of Genius Who Were Celebrated as Tireless Pedestrians.

There have been some famous pedestrians, with the emphasis on the word famous. Charles Dickens was a great walker. "Twelve, fifteen, even twenty miles a day were none too much for Dickens." "With swinging his blackthorn stick, his little figure sprang forward over the ground, and it took a practiced pair of legs to keep alongside of his voice." He once did "a special feat of turning out of bed at 2 after a hard day, pedestrian and otherwise, and walking thirty miles into the country for breakfast."

Sir Walter Scott "walked twenty or thirty miles without fatigue, notwithstanding his limp." Browning when past seventy could take long walks without fatigue, and Wordsworth at threescore did twenty miles a day. De Quincey considered fourteen miles a day necessary to his health, and Lamb, notwithstanding his "almost immaterial legs," "could walk during all the day." Brahms was a tireless pedestrian, and Beethoven always took his daily walk or "run" of five or more miles in all manner of weathers, while Turner traveled twenty miles a day, sketching as he walked. Herbert Spencer at thirteen, in a fit of homesickness, walked forty-eight miles one day and forty-seven the next, but was probably injured in so doing. Tolstoy at fifty-eight walked 130 miles in three days.

Great men are usually of powerful physique, and many of us would suffer if we emulated their walking habits, but they have not all been so vigorous. Immanuel Kant walked for at least an hour every day, but doubtless Bacon or Locke, Chopin or Weber, Spinoza or Calvin, who were none of them in good health, would have found a walk of a mile or two quite sufficient or even too much.—Dr. James Frederick Rogers in St. Nicholas

Marvelous Measurement.

Much is heard of the wonderful instruments employed by science to record the slightest tilts and pulsations of the crust of the earth, but few have any idea of the uncanny accuracy of those instruments. For instance, one such instrument will render observable a tilt of less than one three-hundredth of a second of an arc. This means that if a plane surface was tipped up only so little that the rise would amount to a single inch in a thousand miles the instrument mentioned would reveal the tilting.

SUBMARINE PERISCOPES.

Only One Variety Shows the Entire Horizon at Once.

There are many different styles of periscopes. The simplest form is a vertical steel tube about twenty feet long, with a reflecting prism at the top and the lenses of a telescope at the bottom. It is, in fact, a simple telescope whose line of sight "turns a corner" from horizontal to vertical as it passes through the prism. This instrument takes in forty-five degrees of the horizon, or one-eighth the total field, at one view. By turning the tube on its axis the rest comes into sight successively.

This periscope gives very clear images, but as it can be used with only one eye at a time it does not allow of distinguishing the different planes of vision very well and tires the observer's eye somewhat quickly.

The so called combination periscope allows of vision with both eyes though it is not stereoscopic. A real image is thrown on a ground glass screen, much like that of a photograph camera. It may be looked at with the two eyes, but no impression of depth and space is given. The screen avoids excessive fatigue, but it can be used only in bright light. The size of the image is often insufficient to bring out detail. To obtain greater enlargement without diminishing clearness too much, magnifying lenses are sometimes added.

The prowling periscopes do not enable a commander to take a rapid survey of the horizon. It takes five to ten seconds to make a complete circle. Again, the observer must himself move around with the eyepiece. If the image is to remain upright without moving the eyepiece it is necessary to use a compensatory prism whose movement makes up for that of the eyepiece.

This is the principle of the panoramic periscope, whose tube is fixed and bears at its summit a glass bulb containing a reflecting prism mounted on a base that may be turned with a handle. There is a compensating prism that turns at half the speed and keeps the image straight.

To observe successively all points of the horizon it suffices to turn the crank without its being necessary for either observer or eyepiece to change place.

Nevertheless, however rapid the operation, it does not enable the observer to see the whole horizon at once. This is realized in the periscope with ring shaped eyepiece. At the top of the tube is a ring shaped lens, which refracts toward the base of the tube rays that reach it from all sides. A panoramic image is thus obtained that includes all surrounding objects, though they appear smaller and more distant than with the naked eye. — Exchange.

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, tissues, joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face.

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'Sentanel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentanel tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unsightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallow or muddy skin, usually are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew that there is a very simple remedy, to be found in any drug store, which is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized by the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost, no one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentanel tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no habit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth, and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so gentle, so soothing, and instead of a nauseating after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentanel tablets are put up by the finest specialty house of [illegible] and form, [illegible] the most sensitive [illegible] dimensities of the digestive mechanism.

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the advent of the "Sentanel tablet" as a vegetable substitute for calomel has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. It seems to have made a hit, particularly with those who, tired of calomel, want a pill that, they know, will be free from the disagreeable after-effects that follow the use of calomel and the usual laxatives.

Sentanel tablets, aside from their efficacy, [illegible] to a [illegible] nature, [illegible] aging the [illegible] of injuring the mucous lining of the stomach and bowels, they exert a soothing influence. Instead of irritating, they add tone to the intestinal walls, and work so easily and gently, that of course preference is given them over the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpensiveness is another reason for the popularity of Sentanel tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

Leaders Warn the Voters.

That the wet amendment initiated by the so-called Stability league is designed to prevent the proper use of the initiative and referendum instead of correcting its abuse, is the judgment of Mayor Baker of Cleveland, L. J. Taber, master of the Ohio State grange, and Percy Tetlow, organizer of the miners' union. These leaders represent greatly divergent interests, but they agree that this amendment should be defeated, not because it was initiated by the wets, but because it is a dangerous encroachment upon the rights of the people.
